ANTAGONISTIC
To Prejudice and Empiricism!
OLD DR. CULVERWELL'S
(Member of the Royal College of Surgeons (1827) Licentiate of the Hall (1824,) and 28 years Medical Referee, &c.)
Radical Regenerator,
FOR SEMINAL WEAKNESS,
In all its forms, as Nocturnal and Diurnal Emissions Nervous Irritability, Premature Decay, Loss of Virility, Impotency, and all its evil consequences arising from early indiscretion.

This excellent Remedy, discovered by the world renowned Dr. CULVERWELL, in London, the most successful practitioner in his line for the last 30 years, is now for the first time offered to the afflicted on the fullest confidence of its extraordinary virtues. Its salutary effect is almost instantly felt, and it will doubtless at once supersede all other means resorted to, medical, surgical or otherwise, to arrest and to cure this awful disease. A single trial will convince the most sceptical, that a safe and perfect cure may now be had at the expense of a few dollars, which up to this date could not be produced for all the gold of the world. The heavy expenses incurred in bringing this article before the public could not be risked, were its superiority over every means hitherto employed for the same purpose not insure a certain guarantee of its employment by one person would, through recommending, create an eventual sale to many.

Dr. Culverwell's admirable and lucid treatise on the plan of treating these diseases, is, in the interest of humanity, recommended to physicians throughout the land, to whom every facility will be afforded for testing its wonderful efficacy in their private practice.

Full and plain directions for all the different varieties of the complaint accompany Dr. Culverwell's REGENERATOR-REMEDY, so as to enable every one to treat himself or hers successfully. Price $5, on the receipt of which it will be forwarded by mail, free of postage, to any part of the country. Address, Messrs. BRIDGMAN & CO., Druggists and Apothecaries, 168 Grand-St., New York, Sole Agents for the United States and Canada. Nov. 10. d&wly.

We have made no change in our manner of Growing Pickles, never having resorted to any deleterious means to attain this end. PROFIT AND LOSS.
—OR—
Conscience and the 4th Commandment.

BY REV. J. H. INGRAHAM,

THREE YEARS AFTER.

Twenty-one years ago the sails of a small vessel, schooner-rigged, were tinged with a roseate hue by the rich glow of an autumnal sunset. The rippling surface of the bay of Mobile, into which she was entering from the Gulf of Mexico, was bronzed with brown and gold from a gorgeous cloud. The sky along the horizon was purple-tinted, and beneath the haze was visible long lines of blue and green which marked the lovely shore of the bay. The whole scenery, including land, water, and sky, was very beautiful. Two young men were gazing upon it with interest; and as each gradually their eyes, for forty-four days without seeing land, rested with delight upon the green belt that marked the enclosing shores of the placid bay.

"I have heard Cartwright, of the loveliness of the atmosphere in the South," said one of them, addressing the other; "but I had no conception of the soft, delicate tints which we see."

"I have seen as fine sunsets in New England," Emerson," answered the other; "and here are no mountains such as there to give grandeur to the supe beauty of nature."

"The variety visible in the scenery of the globe, is one of the evidences of God's goodness, and of His own love for the beautiful."

"Pshaw, Emerson! you can never speak without putting in religious words by neck or heels. Can't hear such sometimes."

As Cartwright spoke he turned away, and lighted his cigar by that of the mate, and began to talk with him about the chances of reaching Mobile by morning with the present light wind. Emerson continued to enjoy gazing upon those glories of heaven and earth, which, though but fragments of the magnificence and splendor of the creation before Adam sinned, yet possess attractions sufficient to fill our minds with awe and delight; and to convey to the imagination some faint conception of what this earth and its o'erarching skies, would have been but for the Fall.

"Tea's ready, Cap'n!" said a freckled, mop-headed lad, who acted as cook on this Yankee schooner, popping out of the companion-way his sooty visage.

When, after supper, they returned to the deck, the sun had gone down in his gold and purple seat; a silvery bow hung in the western sky, skimming the surface of the bay with a shower of arrowy light while stars and planets around her burned; the sky overhead was blue and glittering with its universe of infinity; distant stars, sparkling like diamond dust; and in the east, just risen above the horizon, Venus glowed, large and dazzling, like a beacon; and Cartwright exclaimed:

"It is a light-house!"

"A light-house in the sky, sir," said the mate coolly; "Government don't put to much expense for all there."

"How beautiful it is all above and around us now, yet how different from what it was an hour ago, when the sun was setting!"

"Can't you speak plainly about it, Ned," said Cartwright, with a slight sneer in his tone of voice.

"Yes, William," answered Emerson, without betraying any signs of resentment at his companion's slur. Listen

"Hours as the evening shades prevail,
The moon takes up the wond'rous tale,
And nightly to the listen'g earth,
Repeats the story of her birth;
While all the stars that round her burn,
And all the planets in the sky,
Confirm the tidings as they roll,
And spread the truth from pole to pole."

"What though in solemn silence, all
Move round this dark terrestrial ball,
What though no real voice nor sound,
Among their radiant orbs be found;
In reason's ear they all rejoice,
And utter forth a glorious voice,
For ever singing as they shine,
'The hand that made us is Divine.'"

"Well, that's what I call poetry, and to the point too, said the Captain. It's the best description of a night like this I ever heard written by mortal man. I used to love to hear a speak it from a piece when I was at the district school. Such a night as this is to hear it, tells what it is."

"It's all hymn in Ned's Prayer-Book, Captain," said Cartwright, laughing. "You had better ask him to sing it and then pray."

"Don't make a mock of religion, young man," said the rough looking Cap'an, speaking kindly but gravely. "No man can do without it—We shall need it all when we come to die; and a man who gets it beforehand is all ready to drop anchor, and rice easy when need comes."

"I am as religious as he is!" answered William Cartwright; "but I don't make such a show of it; talking about God, like Ned here, whether I see a rainbow or a whale.

Well, Mr. Cartwright," answered the Captain, a mind with his eyes about him can't well go through God's ark, without having the Almighty often come up in his mind. That's what men are made with their faces looking up towards Him for, and not pointing down, like the brute creatures, that think of nothing."

The next morning they were seventy leagues below the city, because they had been all night. It was Sunday, and the spirit of that sacred day seemed to rest upon the waters.—The crew were quiet, and cleanly dressed, and engaged in looking over their chests, for reading. The Captain, in his Sunday gear, walked he deck looking out for a breeze! The two young men, his passengers who had come out from the north to seek situations in some business in the city, were reading—Cartwright having in his ship's copy of Shakespeare's—for which, and Emerson with the Bible.

As he walk the Captain at length glanced over the books the two young men were deeply occupied with. After a few moments to spoke, his removing his cigar and knocking off the ashes.

"I don't profess to be a religious man—I swear when I get mad, too much for that, (more's the pity perhaps); but I am free to say, that if I was a merchant, and wanted a clerk, I would as soon at sight the man who reads his Bible on Sunday, instead of play books; and what's more, I wouldn't have a clerk, who, to his own raised, when he got from his mother's house, would do Sunday what he would not do at home. I'm your fair in for, Mr. Cartwright. I've known your father and mother all my life, and you since you was a baby. So I'm free to speak plain, and as a friend. You were well brought up;—just as well as Mr. Emerson here, who is just about your age. Both you and he ra taught you to steer right. They both put Bibles in your trunks. Yes its I haven't seen it on your hands yet, and this is the fifth Sunday out; but you always have some novel or story on hand. Now take my advice, sinner as I am.—Keep God Almighty's Sabbath Day if you want to prosper.

The young man addressed looked displeased and was about to reply, when a breeze struck the schooner's sails, and the vessel was put to bowing and obeisance, and the vessel was soon sweeping along the rippling water as fast as homeward her port.

THREE YEARS AFTER.

The young man, upon reaching the city, presented their letters of introduction, and looked now only about to obtain situations in a drug or a apothecary's store to which business they had been brought up. Emerson was for months over, one and-twenty, the other six months. Nearly at an age coming from the farm New England village, raised in the same pursuit and equally skilled in their vocation, their future prospects, their chances of obtaining wealth, were equal—but at it would be so.

There were two houses in all wants the services of just such clerks, who fully understand the putting up of prescriptions, and were familiar with the nicer and more delicate details of business, for the careful performance of which depend the safety of human life.

One of these gentlemen spent an all day Sunday in the other and up on Saturday night, making Sunday a day of rest by going to his store for any medicine ordered on that day and when obtaining it closed it again. The two applicants met at the counting room of the first place having breakfast of the waiter

"So, Emerson, said Cartwright, as we are likely to be associated each other."

"Yes, answered Edward, smiling good humoredly."

"But I will tell you a secret about this store; they keep open Sunday. Of course it won't suit your strict notions. So you had best back out and let me take it. I am not so scrupulous, you know. People must have medicine if it is Sunday. You know the parable of the ox falling into the pit on the Sabbath day. He must be helped out if it is Sunday. You had better go to the other place, if the pay is not so large. You are so much better looking than I am, I'm afraid if they get you here, they won't look at me."

This was said half-jestingly, half in irony.

"Well, gentlemen," said the druggist, dismissing at the door a man with whom he had been talking, "can I serve you?"

"We are clergymen, sir, and are looking for a situation," said Edward quietly.

The shopman fixed a keen business eye upon each of them, and then said to Edward, as if better pleased with his appearance than with that of his friend:

"I am in want of a thoroughly trained clerk. I give six hundred dollars and board the first year. If you will take you if you will show me good references, and all that."

"Do you close on Sunday," said Edward.

"On Sunday? No! It is our best day.—

Card to the Public

Bickford defines his position!

I MUST TELL my numerous friends, the good & honored public, that my arrangements for the winter season are now completed, by which I am to be daily supplied with abundance of OYSTERS, FRESH FISH, CHOICE FRUIT, and other articles for the supply of my Stalls at the Market House.

Speaking of OYSTERS—I wish it understood that I furnish them raw, or cooked in any style, cold or hot, at my Eating Room, or to families or parties at any time or any place. If you wish to refresh your friends with a really nice Oyster Stew, let Bickford know it, and it shall appear upon your table, as if by the enchantment of Aladdin's lamp. So, too, of the richest PASTRY, in all varieties.

FRESH FISH, in all their varieties, in the season.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

Bickford is devotedly thankful for past favors, and looks hopefully forward to the future. Allow me to say parenthetically, and almost potentially, that the times are getting rather hard, and therefore it is all important that those who have neglected to pay their little bills should; so do at once, for I wish to be on friendly terms with every body.

My Eating Stall at the Market is elegantly supplied, and will be found exceedingly convenient for strangers, gentlemen and ladies, and for those detained from hot meals.

Call in—call out—and all will be well.

Ever yours forevermore.

Professor Humphrey's

SPECIFIC

Homœopathic Medicines,

.....FOR.....

Families, Travellers, and others.

THESE Medicines have been carefully prepared, with a view of supplying families and others with Specific Remedies against all the more common diseases which occur in every day life. The list includes not only remedies for all the more common diseases, such as Coughs, Colds, Fevers, Derangements of the Stomach, Fever, Worm Complaints, Diarrhœa, &c., but also for those more sudden and violent diseases, liable to occur to most on the spur of the moment, such as Cramp, Cholera, Dysentery, Inflammation, Relief will, and treatment it is very important always to have the proper remedies on hand. There are also remedies for those more delicate Female derangements which a lady finds it so difficult to disclose, but yet is desirous from which relief is so much to the happiness and enjoyment of life.

These Medicines are prepared in the form of large Sugar Pellets, one of which is sufficient for the largest dose, and put up in boxes properly labelled. Each box contains 30 or 40 Pellets, and 15 boxes for the different kinds, are enclosed in a neat, case, and with a small Manual or Book of Directions, giving a concise description of the diseases treated, and directions for giving the medicines, diet, &c., necessary for a cure. Cases, also, containing four or six of the small boxes, are put up, which may be supplied with any of the different kinds at the option of the purchaser.

The advantages of Specific Homœopathic Medicines.—In prescribing other Homœopathic Medicines a person of twenty will be recommended for a cough a headache, diarrhœa, or fever, and which, after study, and discrimination is required to get the proper dose. But here you have a Specific Remedy for each particular disease, and here care able to use them with benefit and precision without that labor and study which the business man is so ill able to bestow, and without that research and examination which, to the mother, nurse, or invalid, is so perplexing, annoying, and unsatisfactory. The advantages are so obvious as to commend them to all.

Prepared by Dr. F. HUMPHREY, Auburn, N. Y., and for sale by C. B. WALKER, Agent for Maine, at 31 Main street.

LINCOLN'S WATER PROOF BLACKING,

AND LEATHER PRESERVATIVE

Keep your Feet dry, and you will seldom need a Physician.

IS it not a fact that we all suffer from wet feet? Is it not one of the greatest causes of consumption? Is it a fact that when leather is often wet and dried, it soon becomes hard, stiff, and cracks? If so then it is a fact that it is needed. By the application of this preparation, leather remains soft and entirely preserved from decay.

After having employed for 25 years in the manufacture of leather all its properties and being often troubled with wet feet myself, I was led to experimenting on different compositions, and found it easy to make a water proof blacking, at the same time extremely injurious to the other. At last by a chemical process, I discovered a preparation which, perfectly harmonizes with the ingredients of which leather is composed. It will not only nullify leather water-proof, but it also softens the leather, and renders it

Positively, wear two as long.

I have however for three years, and a large part of that time have worked by water factory, with my boots constantly in water, and never had my feet wet during that time. I can therefore recommend it to the public as the best article in the market.

AYER'S

CHERRY PECTORAL,

For the Rapid Cure of Colds, Coughs, and Hoarseness.

Boylston, March 20th Dec, 1855.

Dr. J. C. AYER: I feel that the late tenacity the Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has ever found for Coughs, Hoarseness, Influenza, and the concomitant symptoms of a Cold, is your Cherry Pectoral. Its constant use in my practice and my family for the last ten years, which is above it to possess superior virtue for the treatment of those complaints. ERIN KNIGHT, M. D.

A. B. MONTEBY, Esq., of Utica, N. Y., writes: I have used your Pectoral myself and in my family ever since it was first introduced, and I do not hesitate to pronounce it the best medicine for a cough, cold, or hoarseness, I ever knew. With a blood boil I would say twenty-five dollars are not a bottle than do without it, or take any other remedy.

Croup, Whooping Cough, Influenza.

Dr. AYER: I feel it my duty to certify to you that your Pectoral is the best remedy we possess for the cure of Whooping Cough, Croup, and the other diseases of children. We of your family to that south appreciate your skill, and commend your most valuable preparation.

Yours, &c. CHARLES EMERSON, M. D.

AMOS LEE, Esq., Merchant, Ia., writes, 24 Jan., 1856: I take a pleasure in informing you, which confirms me of the wonders took many medicines without relief, until I tried your Pectoral, by the advice of one clergyman. The dose restored the soreness in my throat and I have been free from the trouble ever since. Your medicine is also the cheapest as well as the best we can buy, and we never keep, nor will, your remedy.

Asthma or Phthisic, and Bronchitis.

Rev. Father Cicora, Pastor of the Italian Church in this section, writes: "I have relieved by its use, from other remedies, of so complaint, and is now serving a person who has labored under an affection of the lungs for the last forty years.

Singer's Sewing Machines.

THESE celebrated machines are in practical and practical use in all parts of the civilized world, in all the various trades, and in sewing every sort of fabric, either of cloth or leather they have been fully tried and approved. Sewing machines of other manufacturers are still in use, but SINGER'S MACHINES ALWAYS OPERATE PERFECTLY, being strong, durable, and complete in construction and workmanship. A perfect Sewing Machine kept employed affords a clear profit of $1000 a year; but an imperfect one is a cause of constant vexation and loss. The entire relinquishment of one machines is the great reason for their unparalleled popularity.

MACHINES FOR FAMILY SEWING,

of a full and delicate construction, are recommended by other manufacturers. Such machines are made to order to perform substantial work. The truth is, family sewing machines ought to be stronger than any other, because they go into less skilful hands than when used in manufacturers, and are used for a greater variety of work. Those machines which have proved best for family use, and they are Singer's. The work of our machines has lately been doubled, and we offer one to compare them in quantity of work.

Now much use, at the latest improved style will be exchanged on liberal terms for old sewing machines, of our own make, or for machines of other manufacturers.

N. B.—All persons can bring full information about sewing machines, can obtain it by applying for a copy of "I. M. Singer & Co.'s Gazette," a paper devoted entirely to the subject. It will be sent gratis.

Three bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of scrofula in the world.
